PRESIDENT'S REPORT

Fellow Gunners,

For much of the period since my last report, I have been traveling Europe whilst on long service leave.

It was a truly wonderful experience. There is so much history in every city which is interesting and exciting but you also realise that most economies are in poor state. By comparison you realise what a young nation Australia is but how lucky we are. It made me appreciate more the sacrifices of our soldiers, sailors and airmen made so that we can have the quality of life we do. I would like to thank Peter Mahoney, Vice President for taking over the reins whilst I was away and for attending the Corps dinner.

I would like to take this opportunity to remind you of, and promote the Artillery WA website <http://www.artillerywa.org.au/>

Our next major event will be Gunners Day 2012, which will be held on Sunday, 4th November at 11.30 am at St Mathew's Church, Stirling Square, Guildford. We will form up at 11:00 am. The format will be the march to the memorial and memorial service and then the church service. This will be followed by light refreshments in the church hall. Those wishing a stronger drink or lunch can then retire to the Rose & Crown hotel.

I look forward to seeing you on Gunner's Day,

Ubique,

Bob Farrelly

LTCOL

President, RAA Association

B.C.'s NOTE

Fellow Gunners,

2012 is a year that many of us will remember as the year that everything changed.

Don Rae was saying that he had seen a good deal of this years before when the CMF shrank overnight and 3 FD REGT effectively became 7 FD BTY. I haven't Don's years of experience but I have never seen change of this scale and it is having an effect on the Bty, the BDE and the ARES.

- The significant budget cuts required across the Defence portfolio are still to be completely worked out but it appears that the ARES will have to concentrate on a narrow skill/capability band to make best use of limited resources
- Ammunition and ARTS reductions will mean 7 FD BTY revamping the training calendar with more use of simulation and dry firing.
- 7 FD BTY will come under ADMINCOMD of the 11/28 Battle Group Jan 2013.
- Hobbs Artillery Park is being reorganised into a Battle Group HQ which will see major change to the accommodation and set up.
- 7 FD BTY retains a recruiting target of 12 (ECN 161) Light Gunners 2012/13. However ECN 255 Arty Observers has been suspended.

Our aim is to keep all our people as these changes all affect us in some way.

The turnout at the BTY Dinner/Regimental Dinner was very good; please make the effort to get to Gunners Day as the scale of change may mean that many traditions long cherished may soon disappear.

ANNIVERSARY GREETINGS TO THE ROYAL REGIMENT OF AUSTRALIAN ARTILLERY
1st AUGUST 2012

The 1st of August 2012 marks the 141st Anniversary of the Royal Regiment of Australian Artillery service to the Army and Australia. Today we again celebrate the history, lineage and customs of the Regiment through a range of dinners and activities.

Deployments of the Counter Rocket and Mortar system and Unmanned Aerial Systems continue in Afghanistan with further deployment; in training for later in the year. They of course were not the only deployment; and we have soldiers from the Royal Regiment supporting the Uruzgan Tusk Group as Joint Fires teams and in training Afghan soldiers in the Fourth Brigade and in the Afghanistan School of Artillery. We also remain busy domestically as we embed the capabilities of the M777 Lightweight Howitzer and the Advanced Field Artillery Tactical Data System into our training and we meet the challenge that new capabilities provide us.

As we celebrate our anniversary this year, I ask everyone to think about our Gunners, deployed or in training for deployment to operations across the globe. They should know that we support their families during their absence and we wish them all a safe and speedy return to Australia and their families.

The Representative Colonel Commandant Major General Ford, AO will retire from his position at the end of this year. We all wish him the very best for the future and thank him sincerely for his service to the Royal Regiment and trust that his very strong links to the Royal Regiment endure as I am sure they will.

On behalf of the Representative Colonel Commandant and Colonels Commandant, I congratulate all ranks of the Royal Regiment of Australian Artillery, serving and former, for their service.

PRESIDENTS REPORT and LEIGHTON UPDATE

Dear Members,

Your Committee is pleased to inform all members that our immediate past - president - Bruce Campbell has accepted the position of Patron of the RAAHS.

Annex Items; members are reminded that an extensive range of military titles are able to be borrowed - Wednesdays 10.00- 2.00 be sure to bring some I.D. to access Irwin Barracks via main gate. Recently member Neil Lodge and a select team combed through excess military items from our collection and sold it an Arms and Armour show. Members Harvey Everett, Phil Pougault and Merv Ward have now finished an impressive re-build of our Bofors L.A.A. gun- which is destined for Leighton Battery.

Leighton Items; formal permissions have now been lodged with Council and the Heritage Council for the private toilet to be built as an exterior addition to the Command Post. Recently a number of Council officers were shown over the site and made aware of the RAAHS's plans to re-locate the 3.7 H.A.A. gun to the hilltop in a W.W.2 emplacement. It was also explained to them the Society's plan to roof the 5.25 site and replicate the 6" gun floor at the southern site. Agreement in principle was obtained. Members are reminded that these undertakings are time consuming to process and will cost plenty. Your Committee continues to pursue avenues of finance to that end.

The entrance to the Command Post has been transformed with a dramatic looking large image of the entrance into the tunnel complex -our visitors can now see what awaits them! Members Roger Martin and Don Rae are thanked for their efforts there .Phase two changes in the C. P,'s interior will also commence shortly with a more integrated format to what we have seen to date. Historically we have tended to fill spaces with items merely because we have them, the thinking now is to impress visitors with larger images of more direct relevance to the defence of Fremantle Harbour wartime operations. The bushfire earlier this year exposed three defensive infantry fighting positions cut into the limestone on the N.W. face of the battery. All are only a foot deep now. Council's Heritage Officer is very keen to learn more about these WW2 reminders.

If any of the Leighton guides have a partner who they think would make a good cashier - we could do with one or two. Please approach me about this matter.

The Society thanks member Alf Snell who continues to provide a security presence at the carpark each Sunday. Alf's steely gaze has more than once warned off a few wandering souls.

Once again, thanks you to all members who contribute in any way to our Society operations.

Enjoy the Spring showers!

2012 WEST AUSTRALIAN HERITAGE AWARDS

WINNER CATEGORY 1: Outstanding voluntary contribution to heritage by an individual

(A person who has made a significant and ongoing voluntary contribution to the conservation, promotion and/or understanding of cultural heritage in the community.)

Minister for Heritage the Hon GM (John) Castrill (right) with Robert Mitchell

Robert (Bob) Mitchell has a special interest in and an encyclopaedic knowledge of military history, which began with his experience in the Canadian armed forces and has transferred to the Western Australian museum sector.

Bob says that when he immigrated to Australia in 1990, he was interested in exploring his wife's family history who are fifth generation Subiaco born and bred so that's when he joined the Subiaco Historical Society.

Since then he has been an active volunteer for many of the state's heritage bodies, including Museums Australia, the Kings Park Honour Avenue Committee, Rottnest Volunteer Guides, the Scout Museum, the National Trust and the Army Museum. Add to this Bob's twenty two years and continuing membership of the RAAHS of which he is a past president and a guide at the Leighton Battery Artillery Heritage Site.

His recent appointment as curator of the Army Museum of WA is an indication of the high regard in which he is held and this is further signalled by his appointment as mc at the ANZAC Day Parade and Peace Park Ceremony in Albany.

Congratulations Bob on your most deserved award.

PRESENTATION OF PHOTOS

A magnificently framed set of photographs of forty two of the forty three servicemen killed during the Second World War and who all resided in Mosman Park before the war is a lasting and fitting tribute to their great sacrifice.

Lance Corporal Alan Wilfred Moore left a wife and four children in Rhodes Place Mosman Park, artilleryman John Mayo Tolley was killed in Crete and Frederick Edward Smith died when HMAS Perth was sunk.

Images of the three Mosman Park men gazed out of the frame with those of thirty nine other servicemen killed during the Second World War.

This precious memento had been in the care of the Historical Society at Leighton Battery Heritage Site for a number of years but because of its significance to the community at Mosman Park it was decided by the RAAHS committee that it should be offered to the Mosman Park sub-branch of the RSL.

On Wednesday 15th August 2012 following the RSL meeting held at the Mosman Park Council Offices, Don Rae presented the framed photos to the president of Mosman Park RSL Sub-Branch, Mr Alf Snell.

On accepting the presentation on behalf of the sub-branch Alf offered his sincere thanks to RAAHS for the generous gift which was received with acclaim.

THE AUSTRALIAN SIEGE BRIGADE 1916-1918 (part1)

By

Major-General B. M. Morris, C.B.E., D.S.O.

When war broke out in 1914 the Regiment of Royal Australian Garrison Artillery was scattered among the various defended ports of Australia from Thursday Island round to Fremantle. All the personnel were members of the permanent military forces and, as professional soldiers, were keen to join the original units of the First A.I.F. However, enemy warships were then in Pacific waters and it was not until sometime after von Spee's fleet was annihilated at the Falkland Islands on December 8, 1914, that the Government decided to send a siege brigade overseas.

The drafts from the various States collected in Melbourne about 21st May, 1915. Our first quarters were at the police depot in St. Kilda Road, but we soon moved across the road and settled in under canvas on a site that was known as "The Cow Paddock" adjoining Government House. Here clothing and personal equipment were issued, and the unit was organised into a brigade headquarters and two batteries each with its first reinforcements. The total strength was about 450 all ranks.

With the draft from Western Australia came a young kangaroo, which was at once adopted as the brigade mascot. It nearly died during the voyage through the Red Sea and could not survive the cold of its first English winter. However, its memory was perpetuated by a stencil cut from a photograph which was subsequently used on all vehicles - B.H.Q. white, one battery blue, the other battery red.

Most of the members of the excellent regimental bands from Sydney and Queenscliff were in the brigade, but they had to leave their instruments behind as these were Government property. An appeal for funds to purchase instruments was inserted in the Melbourne evening paper. The next morning's mail brought a letter from the proprietor of the Melbourne 'Age' stating that a complete set of instruments and band scores could be selected and the bill sent to him! As a result of this most generous action the brigade soon had a very fine band, probably the best that left Australia during that war. It played with great success in concerts and other performances in England, but when the brigade went to France, the bandsmen became scattered and the band could not be maintained.

The brigade left Melbourne on 17th July, 1915, in H.M.A. Transport A.67, R.M.S. "Orsova", which called at Fremantle, Aden, Suez, Port Said and Gibraltar. The voyage was uneventful except for German measles, which had been brought aboard in Melbourne and persisted until our arrival in England, and one bit of excitement when, somewhere in the Atlantic, off Cape Ushant, a hostile submarine surfaced a couple of miles astern of us. Before it could attack us two destroyers came over the horizon at full speed and the submarine disappeared. That it had been active in the area was clearly visible as we steamed through much wreckage and passed several corpses. At eighteen knots the "Orsova" steamed straight for Plymouth with two destroyers running round her like terriers.

Disembarking at Devonport, we moved by train across England (at its most beautiful in September) to Lydd in the south of Kent. Our arrival at the camp took the authorities completely by surprise. They thought we were in Egypt! As there was no accommodation available for us, the only solution was to give the whole brigade a week's leave. However, some of the personnel had no "cash in hand" and, in a strange country where many had no friends, it was essential that some pay be issued. At that time there was no A.I.F. Headquarters in England; consequently, by arrangement with the Australian High Commissioner's office in London, funds were made available at a local bank.

Soon the brigade settled down to training, but such was the shortage of equipment available at that time to the British Army that all our drill and field-firing was carried out on old 8 inch muzzle loaders and out of date Austrian howitzers. Three months were spent at Lydd in training and organisation. Brigade headquarters and the two batteries were allotted numbers in the Royal Garrison Artillery -- the 36th (Aust.) Heavy Artillery Group and 54th (Aust) Siege Batteries.

In December we moved to Taunton in Somerset where mobilisation in all respects was completed, stores being drawn from the arsenal at Woolwich and the guns direct from the manufacturers. The 54th was armed with 8 inch howitzers (each piece travelling and firing on the one axle) and the 55th with 9.2 inch. The 9.2's were distributed for travelling into three loads, which had to be assembled into one unit for firing. The maximum range for each of these howitzers was 10,000 yards. Tractors, lorries, cars and motor-cycles (with and without sidecars) were drawn to establishment.

On 26th February, 1916, the first details of Brigade Headquarters and the 54th Battery proceeded to France via Folkestone and Boulogne. The 55th left Taunton at midnight on March 1st and 2nd, and crossed the Channel on the 2nd. With the exception of a small M.T unit, the Siege Brigade was the first A.I.F. unit in France. The trek up from the base was made without incident except that we had trouble with frozen radiators on account of the extreme cold. The 'spuds' on the tractor caterpillar tracks became very badly worn travelling on the paved roads. Many times later in the war when moving long distances by road, the tracks were worn smooth and the tractors became unmanageable.

8 inch howitzers - 54th (Aust) Siege Battery

9.2 inch Howitzer - 55th (Aust) Siege Battery

The brigade's first positions in action were in the British XVII Corps area, covering the line just north of Arras, immediately west of Vimy Ridge.

It might here be noted that the greater portion of the brigade's war service was spent with corps other than the Australian Corps. Frequently, indeed, headquarters and the two batteries were in three different corps. For example, in November, 1917, headquarters was at Rousdamme, in Belgium, the 8 inch battery was at Nieuport on the coast, and the 9.2 inch battery near Cambrai. Brigade Headquarters served in nineteen different corps, each of the two batteries in seventeen. Apart from British and Australian formations, they served under the French II Corps and Cavalry Corps, the 16th French Division, the 2nd and 6th Belgian Divisions, and the Canadian Corps, while several times they were also in liaison with the New Zealanders, and South Africans.

In June, 1916, the brigade moved south to the Somme, to cover some British divisions attacking on the northern flank. We were soon moved, however, to the vicinity of Albert and it was here that we first made contact with the Australian divisions which were operating at Pozieres. Soon the 55th Battery took position in the famous chalk pit near Contalmaison; here it stayed for two months before returning to the Arras area.

Early in 1917 headquarters and 54th Battery did good work on the old Somme battlefield when the Germans retired to the Hindenburg Line. They, too, then returned to the Arras sector. All components of the brigade then took part in the successful attack on Vimy Ridge on 9th April, 1917 -- a big show in which no other Australian units took part in the preliminary bombardment prior to this attack the massed artillery fired 2,687,600 rounds of all natures in 15 days. The 55th was first in the moat behind the city of Arras where we made ourselves very comfortable. For several weeks following the capture of Vimy Ridge our batteries occupied successive positions as the advance continued. These, however, were not very far apart so the "11 rest" position of the 55th remained in the moat. The final position in this sector was in "Battery Valley" where, owing to the limited area and number of batteries available, the howitzers were mounted only ten yards apart. Some of our weapons were here condemned for inaccuracy after firing 10,000 rounds.

In May, 1917, the Australian batteries were withdrawn from this sector after the battle died down and entrained for the north to begin their long sojourn in the Ypres Salient. For the 55th this lasted until October. In the salient we had most of our trouble with soft soil; in the Arras and Somme areas it had been largely chalk. Shortly after our arrival in Flanders the preliminary bombardment, for the Messines battle commenced. Prior to that attack on June 7th, siege batteries were engaged in wire cutting, bombardment of strong points, observation posts, trenches, prevention of enemy work by night, harassing of roads by day and night without cessation, and counter battery work. In these preliminary bombardments, for twelve days before the attack, 3,561,500 rounds were fired by the artillery of the British Army, and the effect on the Germans was plainly visible after the assault when prisoners were taken still dazed and deafened.

About this time the 54th (8 inch) Battery was moved to an area on the coast, and I lost track of its doings. On one occasion, however, I managed to pay the battery a visit with Lieutenant-Colonel H. W. Lloyd of the Australian Field Artillery. A most interesting thing we heard there was the alarm signal from Nieuport when a shell fired by a long-range gun in the vicinity of Ostend was travelling overhead towards Dunkirk. After the alarm sounded the inhabitants of Dunkirk had two and a half minutes to get to safety.
